FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

The Rebels Kept Awake by Reconnoissances Across the Potomac.

Dashing Exploit by a Company of Duryee's Zouaves.

CAPTURE OF FIVE BRASS PIECES.

Another Dash by the Sixty-Second Pennsylvania.

Four Hundred Rifles and a Rifled Twelve-pounder Captured.

THE POSITION OF THE ENEMY.

HARPERSTOWN, Friday, Sept. 26.

The correspondent of the American, writing from Sharpsburgh, 24th, says:

Our troops are learning some of the tactics of the enemy, and since the, rebels were driven over the Potomac, at this point they have kept them awake with reconnoissances and dashes across the river. Col. Wilcox, commanding a brigade at this point, went over a company of the Fifth New-York recently, who brought back five brass pieces. The rebel pickets fell back as our men advanced, and

A Drummer of the Fifth, whom Col. WARREN had sent over as a punishment for showing some nervous, over-anxious fire on the previous occasions, brought a fifth back. An attempt was also made to bring off a sixth, but the rebels rallied and took it off. The regiment was drawn up on the canal bank during the affair, and some shots were exchanged, but without serious results. One man, Sergeant CAGWIN, of the 5th, was wounded in the leg.

Yesterday afternoon the Sixty-second Pennsylvania Col. SPRAGUE, with a section of the First New-York Artillery, and GARNER'S Brigade, crossed the river at Shepherd's Ford, below Shepherdstown, and brought back six rifles, mostly marked "London, 1862," and one fine 12-pounder rifled brass piece of English manufacture. The affair was accomplished rapidly, and with entire success. The rebel pickets fell back as our lines advanced, without resistance, and not even a shot was fired.

These little affairs have an excellent effect upon our men, and their cheering as the prisoner reached this side was hearty and enlivening.

It appears to be well ascertained that the bulk of the rebel army still remains along the other branch of the Potomac. All our reconnoissances find them in strong force, and the smoke of their camp-fires can be head opposite all the fords.

As it is a part of the rebel tactics to show the little force where they have the least force, these manœuvres are not to be trusted. It must be difficult to feed so many as large as that of the rebels at a point so far from railroad communication, and it is probable that a large portion of their force have withdrawn for back on Winchester.

Three or four hundred wounded prisoners, left here by the rebels, were yesterday paroled and sent across the river under a flag of truce. The flag was also used to agree to a suspension of picket-firing, and the pickets of both armies now walk along the opposite banks of the river without molestation or fear.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM FREDERICK.

FREDERICK and WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 26.

Affairs are quiet. Nothing has been heard from the occupants to-day on the Virginia side.

The Emancipation message of the President is well received by the army, particularly the volunteer portion of it, so far as I have observed.

OUR ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

The Feeling of Disappointment at the Escape of the Rebels—Incidents of the Late Battle—Preparations for Activity Again—Conversations With Rebel Officers and Men—Evidences of Unionism, &c.

HEADQUARTERS, MD., ONE MILE FROM THE POTOMAC, Monday, Sept. 22, 1862.

A general feeling of disappointment pervades the army that the rebels, whom we have so many chances on the point of bagging, have again escaped. Four days ago the brave boys now resting on their arms were overjoyed with the prospect of capturing the entire rebel horde. Before them rolled a deep, wide river, behind extended a semi-circular ridge of our soldiers, as impenetrable as it was steeply drawn, and before another sun rose the already vanquished enemy would experience the insurmountable fate. To-day they roam securely on their own rebel soil, holding good "Stonewall's" promise made last Spring, that he would come in the Autumn and harvest the rich cereals of the Shenandoah Valley. How or why it was that the Confederate army was permitted to slip through our fingers, when but one more vigorous pressure was needed to render it shapeless, broken and dead, it is not for me to say. The ways of history are mysterious and open to criticism. Suffice it to, that the responsibility does not, as there was attempted to prove, rest with the corps who occupied the left. For the gallant Burnsides—

An fall of peril and adventurous spirit,
As to o'er-walk the current roaring loud,
On the uncertain footing of a spear.

sent to press on to and over the river, driving the retiring rebels pell mell into its waters. That he was unsuccessful is no, in a course of honest anguish, reflection to himself, but to his Staff and brave followers. Gallantly they had followed the retreating army from the mountain passes, assisted in hemming them in by the river side, and when, as they supposed, their arduous toils were about to be crowned with success, and the death-blow administered to the rebellion, they were obliged to stand and see the victim pass over. Let no partisan pen dare attempt to tarnish the unsullied fame of the brave Burnsides and his brave but now decimated followers!

Commander-in-Chief makes no mention of Burnside in the report of the contest, but when the history of the last week's engagements shall have been drawn up by an impartial observer, it will be found that the gallant army of North Carolina we are indebted more than to any other corps for the partial victory which has crowned our arms.

But here all is quiet on the Potomac. Our legions are stretched along its banks from Harper's Ferry to Williamsport, preventing any crossing of the enemy, but preparing to cross themselves. One would think to look at the hosts of men crowding the hills in every direction as far as the eye can reach, that the army of the Potomac comprised enough men to gobble up the entire Southern Confederacy at a mouthful, I am not sure, but it does. Reinforcements from the North are constantly arriving and before a month passes we shall have a force which will scourge Rebeldom worse than the locusts of Egypt.

Gen. FOSTER'S corps occupy the ground at present between the village and the river. The enemy made their appearance Saturday and yesterday on the opposite shore, and their sharpshooters have fired at our men several times. The attempt of the One Hundred and Eighteenth Pen. and Forty-fourth Massachusetts to cross the Potomac day before yesterday of which an account has already been forwarded you, was another Bull's Bluff affair, though on a much smaller scale. The Pennsylvania regiment suffered severely in killed and wounded.

Gen. MCCLELLAN'S headquarters are located to-day in a tent, about a half a mile from the village in the direction of the river. Learning yesterday that Bishop WHITTLE was in town, he sent a note to him, requesting his presence at headquarters to lead in devotional exercises and thanks to God for the signal victories which he had vouchsafed to our arms. The occasion was one of deep interest. Gen. MCCLELLAN and several of his Staff and other officers kneeled in prayer, while the Bishop offered up a fervent petition that the God of battles would still continue to be with and prosper us. In the course of his remarks he aimed to show that the soldier, instead of being necessarily, as many supposed, a wanderer from God, was, on the contrary, a subject of his special favor. Christ mingled with them freely, and some of his most devoted followers were from among the Roman soldiery. Religious exercises were likewise held at many of the encampments. It was a most impressive sight, the various groups of men assembled to listen to the counsels of their chaplains and chant those sacred melodies which they had learned to sing around the family altar, or in the House of God. Nothing so reminds one of home and childhood as the voice singing wafted to the ear through the still air of evening from the soldiers' encampments.

On every hand are seen the evidences of the late terrible bombardment which this village has undergone. Thinking that our forces would not shell the town the rebels formed their line of battle directly in front of it. Most of the inhabitants who had not fled took refuge in the cellars. One of our balls entered the hotel where I am stopping, passed through a jar of sweetmeats, shattered the baby's cradle to pieces, broke the cooking-stove into fifty parts, and did not stop in its course before committing numerous other depredations of a similar character. While Dr. RANKE was looking out of his office window, a shell burst directly under his nose, and soon afterwards another entered his parlor window and nearly ruined the room and furniture. One shell passed clean through both walls of a brick house on Main-street, knocked off the end of another, and struck a man standing some distance beyond; another passed through the roof of a barn, making a fearful hole, darted down into the manger, where a horse was feeding, without injuring him, and glancing to the left, grazed the back of a Pig. Two or three houses were burned, and there is scarcely a building left that is not perforated one or more times, so terribly destructive are our missiles of war. The rebel Generals remained in town during most of the time they were LEE, JACKSON, TOOMBS and LONGSTREET, (not a prisoner, as reported.) Gen. BRANCH, of North Carolina, whom BURNSIDE defeated at Newberne, the rebels informed me, was killed at the left, during the first day's fight. Major-Gen. STARK, of New-Orleans, commander of Stonewall's old brigade, was certainly killed on Wednesday forenoon. His body was carried through the street in a blanket, to the rear. Gens. WALKER, MAGRUDER and RIPLEY were wounded. JACKSON'S horse was twice shot from under him.

At one time, during this day, the rebels were seized with a frightful panic, and rushed helter skelter through the streets, flinging aside their guns, knapsacks, or anything which impeded their flight. Several of the sentinels went into the houses and waited until our forces entered the place, voluntarily gave themselves up. A large volume would be required to treasure up the thrilling incidents which occurred among, and the heroic achievements which were performed by our troops. The most affecting sight perhaps, witnessed, was a poor wounded fellow, of the HAWKIN'S Zouaves, who, as he lay on the ground, unable to rise, waved on his comrades with a cap, as they were making a charge. Col. C. B. CARRIE, of the Fiftieth Pennsylvania, Acting Brigadier, took the colors in his own hands, and going in advance of his regiment, said: "Brigadier, follow me." Gen. WILCOX, when his brigade was compelled to fall back for a time, bravely remaining in the rear a target for the enemy's sharpshooters, GRUFFIN'S battery recovered a gun which was lost at the first battle of Bull Run. Capt. LEE'S famous Massachusetts Battery was not lost, as first reported. The Thirty-fifth Massachusetts was reduced from 1,000 strong to 300 men. The One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania, a new regiment, were five times ordered to fall back before doing so, so intent were they on slaying the traitors. The One Hundred and Thirtieth Pennsylvania, another new regiment, refused to fall back until ordered to do so several times. Col. HIRST'S horse was twice shot through the neck, and he lost 100 men killed and wounded. The conduct of the raw regiments challenges the admiration of the entire army.

Gen. COX'S Division buried 700 of the rebels, and only 200 of its own men. A corresponding disparity between our own and the rebel killed existing through all the engagements. This was chiefly owing to three reasons: The superior firing of our men; our successful flank movement thus placing the rebels between two fires, and their want of ammunition. Our cavalry force which escaped from Harper's Ferry, having captured their ammunition train, they were so reduced as on the last day of the fight to be compelled to fire stones.

Large numbers of the rebel wounded left in the flight remain here at Hagerstown, and scattered among the four farm-houses. Among them I find several who were present at the surrender of Harper's Ferry; so changeable are the fortunes of war. Several rebel Surgeons remain to administer to their wants. I found them willing to converse; many expressing themselves tired of the war.

Capt. JOSHUA HOOME, of the Fiftieth Pennsylvania informs me that a wounded North Carolinian beckoned him toward him while the fight was progressing on Wednesday and asked to have his leg relieved; but said he did not want it saved. He wanted it cut off so that he could be sent home, from which he had come unwillingly. "I was impressed," he added with a tear in his eye, "to fight against the old flag, and there are hundreds of more like me in the State who have yet to come and take my place." Many have desired to take the oath of allegiance, remarking that the rebellion is a failure.

On the other hand, there is to be seen, in some, a spirit to fight it out to the bitter end. An artillerist remarked, on Friday, "that while there is a man, woman or child left, we will fight." Another, who was dangerously wounded and unable to recover, exclaimed: "By G—d, if I ever get well I am at you again gentlemen." A wounded Florida officer said he knew the war was hopeless, yet they were going to kill as many of us as they could before giving up. Major ——, a wealthy North Carolina planter, thought if the Abolitionists and the fire-eaters could have been strung up, this war would never have occurred.

Our own wounded are receiving every care that can be bestowed upon them. Among other volunteer Surgeons here is Dr. WM. MUIR, Surgeon-General of the hospitals of Canada—a warm-hearted, genial personage, embodying in his character the better traits of English character.

There is a great scarcity of horses through this section of the country, nearly all of them having been impressed into the Government service. One, which your correspondent had secured on Saturday, was twice seized before I had got a mile out of town. There is also a corresponding scarcity of provisions. Having spent nearly the whole of Saturday on the field, I came in at night for my supper, and after waiting one hour and twenty minutes for my turn, was informed "that they were all out." J.

FROM THE ARMY OF VIRGINIA.

A Railroad Reconnoissance to Bristow Station.

RECOVERY OF VALUABLE PROPERTY

The Rebel Army Constantly Receiving Supplies by Railroad.

ALEXANDRIA, Friday, Sept. 26.

An engine started from Alexandria yesterday, and proceeded as far as Bristow. Shortly after arriving there a train of cars was seen approaching from the other side, but which on discovering their danger started back and disappeared.

Eight rebel soldiers were found at Bristow, who had been stationed there to guard and assist in loading the débris found among the ruins of the trains destroyed at that place. They were captured and brought down as prisoners.

Sixteen freight cars were also found uninjured at Manassas, with about half a car-load of ammunition, which had been piled on the ground and covered with canvas.

The rebels, it seems, got the idea started by some Union prisoners that this was an infernal machine and so refused to approach it. It was loaded, and with the cars, all brought down to Alexandria.

No other troops were discovered in the vicinity.

It was ascertained from good authority that trains were running regularly, night and day, to Culpepper, bringing supplies to the enemy, which were conveyed in wagons from that place, by way of Sparrysville and Front Royal, to Winchester.

The Rapidan bridge has been rebuilt, and the bridge over the Rappahannock was to be finished to-day. All the engines and the cars not completely destroyed have been run off from the stations above Bristow, and are now being used by the rebels.

Last week the line of pickets established by the enemy reached from Winchester to Brentsville, a point some six miles south of Manassas. This was to prevent residents south of that line escaping impressment, which is now being enforced in Virginia where they have sway. Many, however, succeed in eluding those pickets and reach our lines, leaving their families and domestic effects behind.

LATER FROM NEW-ORLEANS

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP PHILADELPHIA.

An Order from Gen. Butler for the Registration of Neutral Foreigners.

The steamship Philadelphia, from New-Orleans on the 15th, the Bar on the 16th, via Havana on the 20th inst., arrived at this port last evening, bringing the following passengers:

H. R. Gemmi, lady, 6 children and servant, R. Gamble, R. W. Mullen, U. S. A.; A. W. Gill, Asa E. Blake, Mrs. S. Hancock and child, John A. Quilty, U. S. A.; Francis W. Kelly, Mrs. Sarah Harper, Mrs. Hettie Mockabe and child, H. K. Stevens, Miss Tucker, and 69 in the steerage.

IMPORTANT ORDER FROM GEN. BUTLER.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, Sept. 14, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No. 71.—As in the course of ten days it may become necessary to distinguish the disloyal from the loyal citizens and honest neutral foreigners residing in this Department,

It is ordered that each neutral foreigner, resident in this Department, shall present himself, with the evidence of his nationality, to the nearest Provost-Marshal for registration of himself and his family.

This registration shall include the following particulars:

The country of birth.

The length of time the person has resided within the United States.

The names of his family.

The present place of residence, by street, number or other description.

The occupation.

The date of protection or certificate of nationality, which shall be indorsed by the Passport Clerk, "Registered," with date of register.

All false or simulated claims of foreign alliance by native or naturalized citizens will be severely punished.

By order of MAJ.-GEN. BUTLER.
GEO. C. STRONG, A. A. Gen., Chief of Staff.

ITEMS OF SOUTHERN NEWS.

We find in the Delta the following items of interest, copied from the Grenada Appeal of the 8th inst.:

VICKSBURGH INTELLIGENCE.

The Essex and Anglo-American passed Grand Gulf yesterday morning, at 8 o'clock, coming up. Their smoke was visible last evening about Diamond Bend, and it was expected the boats would come up after the moon went down last night. We believe every preparation has been made to meet them.

As it is highly probable that we will now have gunboats both above and below our city, we think it would be well to keep them from communicating with each other across the point. We learned yesterday that upper fleet had been reinforced, and put out pickets in the neighborhood of Col. Young, about 12 miles above the city. It will be necessary to have troops on the other side to keep communication open with the railroad. We have plenty of steamers here, by which the field artillery might be carried over the river and back whenever necessary. There is probably infantry and cavalry enough on the other side to support artillery, but if not they can be taken over from this side at any moment.—Vicksburgh Whig, 4th.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

We delay further our present issue to give a hasty account of a destructive fire which occurred this (Thursday) afternoon. While we write the immense gun factory in the lower part of this city is being reduced to ashes. The fire originated in the "drying-room," and before the workmen were aware of it the roof of the building was a sheet of flame; fortunately, all escaped without injury. Some of the workmen, we learn, leaped from the windows of the second story. The loss will not be far short of $75,000 in machinery, unfinished guns, &c., besides the total destruction of the splendid new three-and-a-half-story brick building. The entire community sympathizes with the energetic and gentlemanly but unfortunate proprietors. The building belonged to our esteemed townsman, Mr. JOHN C. EVE. We are not informed as to whether there was any insurance on the building. We regret to learn that Messrs. DICKINS, SARRAH & NELSON were not insured.—Rome (Ga.,) Southerner.

Movements of Gov. Morton, of Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Friday, Sept. 26.

Gov. MORTON, of this State, did not attend the meeting of the Governors at Altoona, Penn., as has been stated. He returned from Louisville yesterday afternoon, where he has been ever since the threatened danger to that city.

FROM THE SOUTH.

Rebel Accounts of the Battle of the Antietam.

The Maryland Campaign a Confessed Failure.

SPIRIT OF THE RICHMOND PRESS

A VICTORY CLAIMED AT ANTIETAM.

From the Richmond Enquirer, Sept. 22.

We have received authentic particulars of the sanguinary battle at Sharpsburgh, alluded to elsewhere, and concerning which so many painful rumors were afloat on yesterday. We have the gratification of being able to announce that the battle resulted in one of the most complete victories that has yet immortalized the Confederate arms. The ball was opened on Tuesday evening, about 6 o'clock, all of our available force, about six thousand strong, commanded by Gen. ROBERT E. LEE in person, and the enemy about nine hundred and fifty thousand strong, commanded by Gen. MCCLELLAN in person, being engaged. The position of our army was upon a range of hills, forming a semi-circle, with the concave toward the enemy, the latter occupying a less commanding position opposite, their extreme right resting upon a height commanding our extreme left. The arrangement of our line was as follows: Gen. JACKSON on the extreme left, Gen. LONGSTREET in the centre, and Gen. A. P. HILL on the extreme right.

The fight on Tuesday evening was kept up until 9 o'clock at night, when it subsided into spasmodic skirmishes along the line. Wednesday morning it was renewed by Gen. JACKSON, and gradually became general. Both armies maintained their respective positions, and fought desperately throughout the entire day. During this battle, although not cut by the enemy's shells, and at one time the enemy obtained a position which enabled them to pour a flanking fire upon a portion of our left wing, causing it to waver. At this moment, Gen. STARK, of Mississippi, who had command of Gen. JACKSON'S Division, galloped to the front of his brigade, and seizing the standard, rallied them forward. No sooner did the gallant General thus throw himself in the van than four bullets pierced his body, and he fell dead amidst his men. The effect, instead of discouraging, fired them with determination and revenge, and they dashed forward, drove the enemy back, and kept them from the position during the rest of the day.

It is now evident that the "Young Napoleon," finding he could not force his way through the invincible ranks of our army in that direction, had determined upon a flank movement towards Harper's Ferry, and thus obtain a position in our rear, Gen. LEE, with lynx foresight, anticipated the movement by drawing the main body of his army back on the south side of the Potomac, at Shepherdstown, Va., whence he will, of course, project the necessary combinations for again defeating his adversary.

The enemy's artillery was served with disastrous effect upon our gallant troops. Their rifled bore musket, howitzer, and cannon, with a rapidity and will that carried havoc amidst the opposing ranks. The battle was one of the most severe that has been fought since the opening of the war. Many of our brave men fell. At dark the firing ceased, and in the morning (Thursday) our army were ready to recommence the engagement, the enemy having been forced back the evening before, and the advantage of the battle being still on our side.

Firing was consequently opened upon the new position supposed to be held by the enemy, but no reply was obtained, and it was then discovered that he had disappeared entirely from the field, leaving many of his dead and wounded in our hands and about three hundred prisoners. The report current on yesterday that a truce occurred on Thursday for the burial of the dead was unfounded. The prisoners stated that their force was more than a hundred thousand strong, and that McCLELLAN commanded the army in person.

Our loss is estimated at five thousand in killed, wounded and missing. The prisoners state that their ranks were greatly decimated, and that the slaughter was terrible, from which we may infer that the enemy's loss was fully as great, if not greater than our own.

The following is a list of commanding officers killed and wounded in the engagement:

Gen. STARK, of Mississippi, commanding JACKSON'S Division, killed.

Brig.-Gen. BRANCH, of North Carolina, killed.

Brig.-Gen. R. H. ANDERSON, wounded in hip, not dangerously.

Brig.-Gen. WRIGHT, of Georgia, flesh wounds in breast and leg.

Brig.-Gen. LAWTON, in leg.

Brig.-Gen. ARMISTEAD, in the foot.

Brig.-Gen. RIPLEY, in neck, not dangerously.

Brig.-Gen. RANSOM, of North Carolina, slightly.

Col. ALFRED CUMMINGS, in command of WILCOX'S Brigade, slightly.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

Correspondency of the Petersburgh Express.

HEADQUARTERS, Monday, Sept. 22.

The accounts of the battle at Sharpsburgh are meagre and contradictory, but agree in reporting it to have been the most bloody and desperately contested engagement of the war.

The Confederate army, though opposed by largely superior numbers, again illustrated their valor and invincibility by successfully repelling the repeated onsets of the enemy.

Officers have arrived here, who state that they went over the battle-field on Thursday, and they assert that the advantage remained on our side, the enemy having fallen back.

The city papers this morning report on the authority of passengers who arrived last night, that Gen. LEE recrossed the Potomac on Friday, at Shepherdstown.

THE RESULT OF THE CAMPAIGN.

From the Petersburgh Express, Sept. 23.

* * * * *

The experiment has accordingly been made, and the result, we think, should banish from our minds the idea that Maryland is disposed at present to unite her destinies with the South. If she had been, her people, upon the appearance of our army upon her soil, would have risen en masse and rushed by tens of thousands into its ranks. We speak only of the majority of them, for we doubt not that there is a very respectable minority who sympathize warmly with the South. The State Government, moreover, is decidedly and intensely devoted to the Union, (so-called,) and the Press there, with scarcely an exception, is of the same character.

For these reasons we think that Gen. LEE has very wisely withdrawn his army from Maryland, the co-operation of whose people in his plans and purposes was indispensable for success. They have failed to respond to his noble appeal in the desired way, and the victories of Boonsboro' and Sharpsburgh, purchased with torrents of blood, have been rendered unprofitable in a material point of view. They have, however, deepened the impression upon the enemy of the previous lessons which we gave him in the art of fighting, and though they have benefited, in their crazy fashion, over imaginary successes heralded in the lying dispatches of McCLELLAN and his trumpet-blowers, the so-called lying correspondents and editors of the LINCOLN journals, yet they will be willing enough to let LEE and his army alone on this side of the Potomac.

We can now put matters to rights in Virginia and turn our attention to PIERPONT and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The former will soon be disposed of, and we trust that a portion of our army will be immediately set to work to destroy the latter in a way to render its reconstruction impracticable. Every bridge, tunnel, and culvert, should be forthwith demolished—every embankment leveled, every cut filled up, and every cross-tie and rail removed from Harper's Ferry to Wheeling and Parkersburgh. The road has been a source of nothing but evil to the State since it was made, and more especially since the commencement of the war. Along its whole line the taint of disloyalty and treason is to be seen. It has more or less Yankeeized the entire region between its track and the Pennsylvania border, from the Ohio to the Potomac.

The recrossing of the Potomac by our forces does not at all disturb us. Under the circumstances, it was a most judicious movement, and in no manner or degree prejudicial to our interests, in a military point of view—save and except the losses we sustained in the sanguinary battles in Maryland, which are to be deeply deplored. But the enemy suffered in this respect far more than we did, and although this is no adequate consolation or compensation to us in the premises, yet it assures us that the blows which we struck lost none of their vigor and efficacy by the brief change which was made of the seat of war.

A FISTICUFF IN NASHVILLE.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Sept. 23.

A gentleman just from Knoxville, Tenn., says that a difficulty occurred in Nashville during the early part of the past week, between Gen. DON CARLOS BUELL, Commander of the United Army of the West, and Hon. JOHN JOHNSON, Provisional Governor of Tennessee. The quarrel grew out of a difference between the two distinguished gentlemen as to the policy of the Federals evacuating Nashville at present. BUELL contended that it was a necessary necessity, and, backed up he was, said that West, with Gen. BRAGG's army to the North of him, and the Confederates, also, holding Chattanooga and Murfreesboro' on the south, it was impossible for him to hold Nashville and subsist his army. JOHNSON replied that, notwithstanding the reported attempt by BUELL, the place must not be evacuated; and if it was, he should certainly blow up the Capitol building before he made his way out of the city. BUELL rejoined by stating that he would cause JOHNSON to be shot if he dared destroy the Capitol. Whereupon JOHNSON remarked that BUELL was a—scoundrel. This was an insult that the Federal General felt himself bound to resent, which he did by knocking JOHNSON down, jumping upon him, and giving him a very sound beating. JOHNSON'S face is said to have been very badly bruised. At last accounts JOHNSON had fled the place, and BUELL endeavored to follow the Governor's example, but finding that Gen. BRAGG was too quick for him, and had placed his powerful army between the Cumberland and Gallatin, retraced his steps and reoccupied Nashville. Here he will probably remain until forced to surrender for supplies. This intelligence was brought to Knoxville on Sunday last by a gentleman who had escaped from Nashville.

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Arrival of a Number of Gen. Pope's Officers from Richmond.

ITEMS OF NEWS FROM SOUTHERN PAPERS.

FORTRESS MONROE, Thursday, Sept. 25.

The flag of truce boat Metamora arrived here this forenoon, from Aiken's Landing, bringing down about 100 passengers, among whom are 24 officers. Below are the names, so far as could be obtained. They are mostly POPE'S officers:

Brig.-Gen. Henry Prince.
Col. Geo. D. Chapman, 6th Connecticut.
Major E. W. Cook, 20th New-York.
Capt. G. S. Halstead, Gen. Auger's Staff.
Capt. Wm. D. Whiting, Gen. Williams' Staff.
Capt. H. Eisenberg, 49th Pennsylvania.
Capt. P. Griffith, 46th Pennsylvania.
Capt. J. H. Vandersoun, 66th Ohio.
Capt. J. H. Stewart, 1st Maryland Cavalry.
Capt. Geo. Thistleton, 1st Maryland Cavalry.
Capt. John Hancock, 1st Maryland Cavalry.
Capt. Charles Russell, 2d Massachusetts.
Lieut. S. B. Gorman, 46th Pennsylvania.
Lieut. H. A. Greatrank, 46th Pennsylvania.
Lieut. A. W. Saltridge, 46th Pennsylvania.
Lieut. C. Sulkamer, 46th Pennsylvania.
Lieut. W. W. Kenyon, 26th New-York.
Lieut. W. M. Green, 100d New-York.
Lieut. S. H. Walker, 2d Maryland.
Lieut. H. Egbert, 12th United States Infantry.
S. J. Whitney, 20th New-York.
Lieut. J. Long, 20th New-York.
J. D. Beardsley, 16th Maine.
N. P. Whitney, 5th Connecticut.
Lieut. C. Snyder, 5th United States Infantry.
Lieut. J. D. Weeks, 20th New-York.
Lieut. A. A. Cheney, 5th Connecticut.
Lieut. Otis Fisher, 7th United States Infantry.
Lieut. J. D. Amos, 20th New-York.
Lieut. C. Doyle, 5th Connecticut.
Capt. Barker, 2d Delaware.
Capt. Darrell, 2d Delaware.
Capt. Wm. W. Bach, 20th New-York.
Lieut. Downs, 2d Wisconsin.
Lieut. Stewart, 1st New-Jersey Cavalry.
Lieut. Robbins, 1st New-Jersey Cavalry.
Col. Wm. J. Leonard, Purnell Legion.
Lieut. J. F. Rinecker, Purnell Legion.
Lieut. N. H. Hogarth, Purnell Legion.
Lieut. A. J. Brooks, Purnell Legion.
Lieut. P. B. Winslow, Pennsylvania Bucktails.
Lieut. T. B. Moore, Harris Light Cavalry.
Capt. W. C. Capron, 1st Rhode Island Cavalry.
Capt. C. N. Golding, Pope's Staff.
Capt. T. W. Dunham, 86th Pennsylvania.
Capt. L. E. Smith, 2d Virginia.
Lieut. A. J. Vandever, 2d Delaware.
Lieut. W. J. Blake, 2d Virginia.
Capt. Z. Baird, Milroy's Staff.
Adjt. Downing, 97th New-York.
Lieut. F. A. B. Combs, 56th Pennsylvania.
Adjt. D. P. Hawland, 12th Massachusetts.
Lieut. Francis Ferris, Harris Cavalry.

Among the passengers are two Misses Kirry, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Callahan and two children, of Washington; Miss Ridgeley, of Baltimore; Mrs. Sidney Beresford, of York Co., Va.; and Mrs. Mary Simpson, going to Baltimore.

All the rebel papers brought down claim victories in all the recent battles, and call upon the people of the Confederate States not to believe one word contained in the Northern papers of Northern success, and that Gen. MCCLELLAN'S account of these battles fully equal POPE'S for misrepresentation.

Speaking of their army, the Dispatch says: "Only a division or two have been withdrawn from the other side of the Potomac, to resist the contemplated movement by BURNSIDE upon our communication at Harper's Ferry." It states that Gen. LEE repulsed Gen. MCCLELLAN on the 17th, pursued him on the 18th, and defeated him on the 19th.

The Richmond Whig, of the 24th, says:

"A dispatch, signed H. P. DAVIDSON, states that the Federals have crossed the river at Shepardstown with 10,000 men, and were immediately attacked by JACKSON'S corps and routed. JACKSON has recrossed into Maryland. Considerable reinforcements have reached Gen. LEE since the battle at Manassas—enough to replace the losses in the recent battles."

The Richmond Dispatch, of the 24th, says:

"The Yankee fleet, anchored in front of Alexandria, has been ordered off. The Federals have burned their disabled wagons, and were removing all their stores to Washington."

The same paper claims a rebel victory at Shepardstown on Saturday last, and a capture of over 4,000 Federals.

The same paper says:

The train that is due this evening will bring from Culpepper Court-House 60 Yankees, who have been there since the engagement near that place. There are several officers and the following Surgeons: Lieut. Col. Smith Maryland; E. S. Bissell, Fifth Connecticut; A. W. Heller, Twenty-eighth New-York, and John B. Cosver, Forty-sixth Pennsylvania. They will be sent home from Richmond.

The Richmond Whig, of the 24th, contains the death of Brig.-Gen. WM. STARKE, of the Second Louisiana Brigade.

The same paper states that Gen. THOMAS' Division still remains in Nashville, but their troops indicate preparations to evacuate. ANDY JOHNSON says that if the rebels take Nashville, they will find his remains under the ruins of the Capitol.

The Tallahassee papers announce the death of Gen. RICHARD K. CALL, a distinguished Floridian, on Sunday.

Yellow fever is in Wilmington, N. C., and is very malignant, for we hear of no recoveries. The telegraph operator had closed his office and removed to Goldsboro.

Col. JOHN F. TEBBETTS, of Virginia, was killed in the recent battles.

The Charleston Mercury of the 22d, announces that Hon. H. W. MILLER, of Raleigh, N. C., died at his residence last Wednesday.

THE GULF PORTS AND PORT ROYAL.

Arrival of the U. S. Sunbeat Connecticut.

Important Naval Expeditions being Fitted Out.

Dashing Exploit of the Gunboat Wyoming off Mobile.

We are indebted to Commander KIMBALL, U. S. N., for files of Houston, Texas, papers to Aug. 8, and for the following memoranda:

The Connecticut is from the blockading squadron in the Gulf of Mexico, and left Galveston Sept. 9, left off that port the United States gunboat Pocahontas, Lieut. Commander Pope, left Sept. 8th; Sabine Pass 12th, Mobile and Pensacola 16th; left off Mobile the United States sloops-of-war Richmond, Captain Wyman, Pensacola and Kennebec. Sailed from Pensacola 19th, and left here the United States gunboats Kearsarge and Fort Henry; transport of Port Royal 23d, and took from her 6 men, and 10 in all from Hampton Roads 26th.

She brings to this port Lieut. J. C. WARNER, of prize boat Winona, and 25 officers, 200 seamen, invalids and discharged; 9 prisoners and 7 refugees.

The general health of our squadrons in the Gulf is good.

Naval expeditions were being fitted out both at Pensacola and Port Royal, and the public will probably hear of important achievements by the former in a week or two.

On the afternoon of Sept. 15, the United States gunboat Winona, Lieutenant Commanding, Tennant, was under the fire of Fort Morgan, which is considered the defence of Mobile, and opened fire on a rebel steamer lying inside, driving off her crew, and damaging her greatly by the explosion of an explosive shell in her bow. Fort Morgan opened a very heavy fire on the Winona, but she escaped unhurt.

On the afternoon of Sept. 9, in lat. 29°, lon. 90° 30', the Connecticut captured the English schooner Jumper. She had run the blockade at Galveston, Texas, bound to Havana, and heavily laden with cotton. Amongst the papers found on board was a memorandum in writing, directing the Captain of the Rambler to sell the cotton at Havana, and with the proceeds of the sale to purchase powder, medicine, army shoes, and other contraband articles, and without delay to return to Sabine Pass.

Capt. HARDER, after the capture, immediately ordered a prize crew on board, and started her off with written orders for the Prize-Master to take her to Ship Island.

The Connecticut also brings a large quantity of cotton and molasses, captured in the Gulf, one lot alone consisting of 300 bales of cotton.

Col. JACK HAMILTON, formerly Member of Congress from Texas, had arrived at the Southwest Pass about the 12th. He was secreted in the mountains of Texas for twenty-one days before his escape. He was accompanied by six friends. He reported a strong Union feeling in the Western part of his State.

The health of the troops at Pensacola was excellent. They were enjoying themselves and were in a high state of discipline. Col. WILLIAM WINSE was in command.

FROM HAVANA AND MEXICO.

Advices from Vera Cruz to the 11th—Stoppage of the Vessels among the French Shipping—Probable Loss of a French Gunboat, with a Million Dollars—Repulsed Attack on Jalapa.

HAVANA, Saturday, Sept. 20.

The steamship Philadelphia from New-Orleans for New-York, has stopped here to coal, in order, once to going to Key West, leaving sickness there, but there is little or no fever now at that place.

By the steamer Mexico, which left Vera Cruz on the 11th, we learn that Admiral JURIEN mounted in the 3-gun-sled frigate Normandie, off Sacrificios, on that day.

The vomito is making dreadful havoc at Vera Cruz, and the French war vessels are suffering severely. Many physicians have died, and only two are left in the whole fleet.

Commander ROMAIN is to sail soon for France, and Capt. DURAND de DE ARPEED has relinquished his already.

Gen. FOREY was expected to arrive on the 20th.

Great anxiety was felt for a convoy with $2,000,000 for the payment of the French troops at Orizaba, which had not arrived, though ten days overdue. The authorities at Vera Cruz gave out that it was stuck in the mud, and that a river had swollen to such an extent as to be unfordable. It is presumed by well-informed persons in Vera Cruz that the guerillas have captured it, as it is known that they knew of its departure, and of the specie conveyed.

It was currently reported that the French were about to attack Jalapa.

The steamer San Juan arrived here on the 7th, and sailed on the 8th.

The steamer British Queen, from New-York, is expected to arrive here to-night or to-morrow morning.

There is no yellow fever of consequence here, and the rains are abating.

Gen. Phelps on the Negro Question.

Brig.-Gen. J. W. PHELPS, who lately resigned his commission, and arrived in this City a day or two since from New-Orleans, has published a long statement of the reasons which led him to the step he has taken. His card concludes thus:

It is evident to me, from a long period of service in the Southwest, that a decided course of policy is necessary on the part of our Government, and that policy should be the immediate and unconditional abolition of Slavery. It is an evil of the worst kind, a standing rebellion against free institutions. No slaveholder, as such, can be loyal to a free Government. The present crisis is a veritable revolution, which must either revolutionize free men out of their habits of Freedom, or slaveholders out of their habits of Slavery.

The four millions of Africans in the United States are organized for agricultural purposes, and are held in labor by the force of chains, stocks and the lash, at the will of the master. This system of labor cannot, despotic Government a political necessity, and the only means of preventing it, is to reorganize these erratic institutions. In the place of the master, the overseer, and the driver, we must substitute the Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel and Major of a military organization, appointing men to these positions of the highest standing and character, and of the most approved loyalty and patriotism. This is the only way that we can reclaim the slave from his despotic uses and render him subordinate to the democratic institutions of the country. It is the only way by which we can manage him with the least possible loss to our liberties and the least amount of detriment to the interests of the master.

It is now about ten months since I left the North to engage in the expedition against New-Orleans, during which time upward of four months have been spent in the vicinity of that city, and yet no progress seems to have been made in restoring peace or quelling the rebellion. On the contrary, after a partial [illegible] of the country, [illegible] to [illegible] the rebellion [illegible] Confined of men, I was [illegible]

[illegible] from the Isthmus is not of much importance. [illegible] is not favorable to the cause of Mosquera. [illegible] having closed all the cathedrals and turned the priests, he seized the church property, which included the nunnery, obliging the nuns to take refuge in some more eligible place, and, accordingly, on the 9th inst., they started for Lima. Three of them were [illegible], and it is evident Mosquera has not strengthened his cause by this perversion of power. The church property was advertised for sale for the benefit of the Government, but the priests had taken all the valuables before the closing of the churches.

Two or three political prisoners were lately brought to Panama from Santiago, and placed on parole, Mosquera having succeeded in establishing his power there.

The English steamer Solaida, arrived from Castillo [illegible] on the 12th inst., and it was there believed that Cespedes and Calvo were yet concealed in that place, or at Aspinwall. The Captain and Purser of the Ariel were obliged to appear before the authorities at Aspinwall and make oath that they were not on that [illegible], and had not made application for passage, either personally or through others. There is now no doubt of their escape on the Avon, with that on her arrival at Aspinwall they were placed on board the frigate Orienta until the Avon sailed again, when they were taken to St. Thomas. Their escape will probably prolong the war, as also the recent treaty between Ecuador and Arequipa, and the former, in all probability, will assist the late Government. An attempt was made to arrest Señor Ramunan, Spanish editor of the Star and Herald, but he took refuge in the house of the United States Consul, who protected him from the authorities. It seems he was not connected with writing [illegible] but it is alleged he was conspiring with [illegible] revolution. The affair was [illegible] by giving himself up, and he was not [illegible]. Rubrados was daily expected at Aspinwall to relieve Colonel Perry.

We are indebted to Purser Wheeler, of the Ariel, for important courtesies.

Latest Intelligence by the Ariel.

Panama, Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1862.

There is little local news to add since the sailing of the last steamer. Matters have settled down on the Isthmus, and we are quietly awaiting the result of a new revolution, which is said to be in embryo.

The only excitement of any moment has been the shipping of our prisoners out of the country, in order that their property may go to the General Government. All but of them now is a Dominican priest, who adheres to the present Administration, and is consequently excommunicated. The churches are all closed, and will remain so until a new order of things.

Business is remarkably dull, and money daily becoming scarcer. There is no doubt whatever that the increased taxation will force several mercantile houses to close before the end of the year, for the Government will try to squeeze every cent it can out of the merchants.

The soldiers are growing very much dissatisfied, and have already made two attempts at an outbreak, and the whole Government fabric appears to be tottering.

[illegible] Mosquera is said to be exceedingly doubtful, and will compel him to keep all his resources at hand to sustain himself.

Should, therefore, further troubles arise on this Isthmus, it would be impossible for him to send forces here to quell them.

Under this state of affairs, and considering that Bogota, which is now frequently cut off from all communication with Panama, is at all times three weeks distant, the United States Government would act judiciously in appointing the Consul here a Consul-General, so as to possess some diplomatic power in case of need.

The position of a Consul, which is purely that of a commercial agent, is not such as to enable a United States representative here to assume the responsibility required of him in the delicate questions which are continually arising during revolutions, and such an appointment as that alluded to might lead to the prevention of trouble with the authorities in future.

Col. McKee is a judicious, sensible man, and well fitted to occupy such a post, and has, I believe, the full confidence of his Government as well as of his countrymen here.

The South steamer arrived just as the last mail was leaving, and there was barely time to send you a note of her arrival. She brought no news of importance.

There is no late arrival from the coast.

The Constitution is just coming in from San Francisco, three days after time.

Garibaldi's Personal Statement.

The following letter from Gen. Garibaldi himself, relating to the unhappy conflict at Aspromonte, was sent by the General to the Movimento, of Genoa, and appeared in our late edition of yesterday:

On Board the Duke of Genoa, Sept. 1.

They thirsted for blood, and I wished to spare it. I speak not of the poor soldier who obeys, but the men of the clique who cannot forgive the revolution for being the revolution—a fact which disturbs their conservative digestion—and for having contributed to the establishment of our Italian family.

They thirsted for blood; I perceived it with sorrow, and I endeavored in consequence to the utmost to prevent that of our assailants from being shed.

I passed along the front of our line crying out to them not to fire, and from the centre to the left, where my voice and those of my aide-de-camp could be heard, not a trigger was pulled. It was not true on the attacking side. Having arrived at a distance of two hundred metres, they began a tremendous fire, and the piety of Bersaglieri who were in front of me, directing their shots against me, struck me with two bullets in the left thigh, not serious, the other in the ankle of the right foot, making a serious wound.

As all this happened at the opening of the conflict, and I was carried to the skirt of the wood after being wounded, I could see nothing more, a dense crowd having formed around me while my wound was being dressed. I feel certain, however, that up to the end of the fight which was within my [illegible] that of my adversary, not a single [illegible] was fired. As [illegible] I believe that they attacked [illegible] rather than [illegible] the [illegible] of the Bersaglieri, [illegible] attacked by a fire along the [illegible] the trumpets sounded to [illegible] that spot a smart fusillade, [illegible] and more than a quarter of an hour.

My wounds led to some confusion in our line. Our soldiers, not seeing me, [illegible] to retreat into the wood, and [illegible] up, and [illegible] Col. Pallavicino [illegible] Second, and having arrived at the sea shore, the rest of my companions should be set at liberty. Col. Pallavicino conducted himself as a gallant and intelligent officer to all his military movements, and he has not been wanting in respect or courtesy toward me and my people. He showed his grief at having to shed Italian blood; but he had received peremptory orders and had to obey them. My arrangements had been purely defensive, and I had hoped to avoid a conflict, seeing the very strong position that I occupied, and entertaining the hope that the regular troops had received orders less sanguinary. If I had not been wounded at the outset, and if my people had not received the order under all circumstances to avoid any collision whatever with the regular troops, the contest between men of the same race might have been terrible. However, it is for better as it is. Whatever may be the result of my wounds, whatever fate the Government prepares for me, I have the consciousness of having done my duty; and the sacrifice of my life is a very little thing if it has contributed to save that of a great number of my fellow-countrymen.

In the hazardous enterprise into which I and my companions had thrown ourselves heedlessly, I expected nothing good from the Government of Rattazzi. But why should I not have hoped for less rigor on the part of the King, having altered in nothing the old programme, and having decided not to alter it at any price? What affects me most in this fatal district, which contributes not a little to leave the national unity incomplete. However it may be, I once again present myself to Italy with head erect, assured of having done my duty. Once more my insignificant life and the more precious lives of so many generous young men have been offered as a holocaust to the holiest of causes—pure from vile personal interests.

G. GARIBALDI.

Hon. Robert Dale Owen's Contract for Arms.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A brief paragraph in your paper of this morning, alluding to a recent purchase of guns by me, does injustice to the Government; which is paying, not $24, but $16 for Enfield rifles. Those purchased by me at a higher price than this were of an extra quality, such as I have not before found in the market.

Your obedient servant,
ROBERT DALE OWEN.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

NEW-YORK EPISCOPAL DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

Important Action on the Question of Dividing the Diocese—Initiatory Steps for Separation.

At the meeting yesterday morning, the Church of the Resurrection of this City was admitted to union with the Convention. After the transaction of the customary preliminary business, the Chair decided that the matter before the House was the motion of Mr. Russell to postpone to the next Diocesan Convention, the question of dividing the Diocese.

The question was then taken by ayes and nees and by orders. The ayes and nees were 74 for postponement and 63 against. The vote of the churches was 67 for, and 30 against, postponement. The question, owing to the failure of both orders to agree, then recurred on the resolution of the Committee of Thirteen, that it is at present inexpedient to divide the Diocese.

Judge Betts offered the following amendment—that the resolution reported by the Committee shall stand as it is, that at present it is inexpedient to divide the Diocese, and further, that the subject be recommitted to the Committee with instructions to divide the Diocese into not less than three nor more than five portions, to the end that in case either of such portions apply to this Convention to be erected into a separate Diocese, the necessary measures may be taken thereon, should the Convention deem it expedient to erect such portion into a separate Diocese.

Dr. Tyng, Mr. S. B. Ruggles and Dr. Alexander H. Vinton, of St. Marks, Rev. Mr. McVickar, Rev. Mr. Weaver, Hon. Murray Hoffman, Judge Hoyt, Dr. Higbee, and Rev. Mr. Wilmer further discussed the question, when Mr. Betts accepted a suggestion of Mr. Wilmer, that the amendment be so modified as to read that it is inexpedient to divide the Diocese at present, but that it is advisable to erect into a separate Diocese such portions of a division as may be asked for by the Churches within the limits of the Diocese.

The amendment was then carried almost unanimously, and thus was amicably adjusted the all-important question of the Convention.

The Committee on the division of the Diocese is Rev. A. V. Littlejohn, D. D., Rev. J. H. Price, D. D., Rev. Robert T. S. Lowell, Rev. Thos. M. Peters, Hon. Murray Hoffman, Hon. S. B. Ruggles, Hon. Wm. Betts, Hon. E. E. Haight.

At the conclusion of the evening exercises, the Convention adjourned sine die.

Taxation.

The Tax Assessors and their Assistants will commence business on Monday next. Only a small portion of the necessary blanks have been sent to the Assessors from Washington, but there are enough to begin with. Their chief business, at first, will probably be to look after the multitudes of trades and occupations requiring licenses.

The Tax Law makes no provision for the payment of office rent for Collectors or Assessors. A Committee of the New-York officials have visited Washington, and had an interview with Commissioner Boutwell, but failed to obtain any satisfactory assurance [illegible] brethren throughout the country, may be brought to see the justice of making an appropriation for these purposes. In anticipation that this will be done, the Collectors, Assessors, and the Assistants of both, have clubbed together, each in their own district, and raised money enough to rent good offices and fit them up neatly. As a general rule, the offices are situated near the business centres of the districts.

So far as we have seen, Mr. Wm. E. Robinson, the Assessor for the Third Collection District, of which Mr. Henry C. Bowen is Collector, is the only appointee under the Tax law who has seen fit to acquaint the public with his arrangements and intentions.

We append the list of his sub-appointments, with such other desirable information as is furnished in his circular:

District 1—First Ward—Alexander Macgrotty, No. 126 Hicks-street; office hours from 8 to 9 A. M. and 4 to 6 P. M., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

District 2—Second Ward—John Donovan, No. 136 Pearl-street; office hours 8 to 10 A. M., Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

District 3—All that part of the Third Ward, south of Pierrepont-street—Matthew H. Voorhees, No. 37 Livingston-street; office hours 7 to 10 P. M., Tuesdays and Fridays.

District 4—Fourth Ward—Luke C. Ryder, No. 109 Johnson-street; office hours 7 to 10 P. M., Tuesdays and Fridays.

District 5—Fifth Ward—John Devlin, No. 128 Hudson-avenue; office hours 7 to 10 A. M. and 4 to 6 P. M., Tuesdays and Thursdays.

District 6—Seventh Ward—Charles Holt, Gates-avenue, three doors east of Ryerson-street; office hours 7 to 9 A. M., Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

District 7—All that part of the Eleventh Ward West of Portland-avenue—Robert D. Anderson, No. 226 Navy-street; office No. 233 Fulton-avenue; hours 6 to 10 A. M., daily.

District 8—All that part of the Eleventh Ward east of Portland-avenue—Taylor S. Northup, northeast corner of Dekalb-avenue and Adelphi-street; office No. 233 Fulton-avenue; hours 7 to 10 A. M. and 4 to 6 P. M., Tuesdays and Fridays.

District 9—All that part of the Thirteenth Ward north of South Fourth-street—William Murphy, No. 108 South First-street; office hours from 6 to 10 A. M., daily.

District 10—Fifteenth Ward—John Davies, No. 271 Graham-avenue; office hours from 7 to 10 P. M., Tuesdays and Thursdays.

District 11—Nineteenth Ward—Joseph L. Heath, No. 14 Morton-street; office hours 6 to 10 A. M., daily.

District 12—All that part of the Third Ward North of Pierrepont-street—George J. Hardy, Mansion House; office No. 13 Court-street; hours 6 to 10 A. M., daily.

District 13—All that part of the Thirteenth Ward south of South Fourth-street—Henry A. Lafetra, No. 24 South Sixth-street.

Mr. Henry C. Bowen, the Collector for this District has appointed his brother, Mr. Eugene Bowen, and Mr. Frank Tappan, of the Agency firm of Tappan & McKillop, Assistant Collectors, and has taken an office, with Mr. Robinson, at No. 12 Court-street.

We presume the other appointees will find it convenient in the course of time, to inform the public as to their whereabouts and intentions.

Another Row in the Empire Brigade.

Another difficulty has arisen in the Empire Brigade, at East New-York. It seems there was a deficiency of men in the different commands, and it was found necessary, in order to fill up the regiments to the maximum standard, to make a consolidation. The First Regiment, under the command of Col. [illegible] Fourth Regiment [illegible] Third. On Monday last, Gen. Spinola, it appears, received orders to make the consolidation.

The General and Adjutant Hartley immediately proceeded to the camp and made the consolidation as follows: 163 men were assigned to the Second Regiment; 245 to the Third, and 75 men were transferred to Col. Allen's regiment. A number of the officers of Col. Burke's regiment were, in consequence, left minus a command, as was the Colonel himself. This was, of course, rather disagreeable, although they were informed by Gen. Spinola that they would receive commissions in some other organization. Col. Burke then set to work to get the order revoked, and succeeded, and another order was received by Gen. Spinola from Inspector-Gen. Van Vechten, directing him to reinstate the Colonel, that he might report to Gen. Cocoran, to whose brigade his command had been assigned. The General replied that Col. Burke had no command, it having been, according to orders, consolidated with the Second and Third Regiments. The Colonel went out to the camp on Thursday, and made quite a time about the matter, saying that he should have his command restored, it is said he used abusive language to the General, and was put under arrest. Therefore he is now a prisoner in the guard-house at the camp. Capt. Dunn, of Col. Burke's Regiment, also took umbrage at the proceeding of the General, and when the order was issued for the restoration of the men to Col. Burke, the Captain went there and endeavored, it is said, to march his company off the ground. He was also ordered under arrest and placed in the guard-house with his Colonel. Most of the men and officers, it is stated, complied willingly with the orders for the consolidation, and so far as was practicable the officers were retained in the brigade. It is difficult to say how the matter will be settled.

Skuse's Patent Fire Escape.

Quite a crowd assembled at 4 P. M. yesterday, in front of the establishment of H. M. Batsey, Iron Founder, No. 199 Wooster-street, to witness a public trial of the new Fire Escape. Messrs. Skuse, the inventor, J. M. Mills, and Inspectors W. W. Adams, Webb, Owens, Armstrong, Taylor, Smith and Hyde, and Messenger Moore, of the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, were present, with several members of the Press. The Escape consists of a ladder composed of a strong wrought-iron chain, on either side, with light but substantial rungs of the same material between, and properly about twelve inches apart. This being flexible was wound around the axle of a windlass at the top of the building, and close to the coping of the roof. The windlass consists, on the one side, of a ratchet wheel, and on the other of an ordinary brake, similar to the kind used at our City ferries. When the chain ladder is wound up, a guiding rod, which extends to the basement of the buildings on either the outside or inside, as may be preferred, worked by the slightest pressure properly applied, detaches the teeth of the ratchet wheel, and in a moment the ladder runs out over a curving frame which throws it clear of the roof and building, to the pavement where, in another instant, it is secured to iron staples fixed in the curb stone. The brake regulates it, and it may be so tightened as to be nearly solid, thus relieving the apprehensions of timid persons. The building from which the experiment was yesterday made is a five-story house, sixty feet in sheer height, and men were carried up and down, in every attitude, by others, with ease and without danger. Messenger Moore, a lad of sixteen, clinging to his neck, from the roof to the pavement in less than one minute. In fine, all the trials made were perfectly satisfactory.

The escape is perfectly simple, and at the same time complete. It is fire-proof, and when once put up on the roof of a building it cannot get out of order. It may be adjusted in one minute, and when the end of the ladder is fastened to the curbstone it will support a weight of 2,000 pounds. It is so arranged that it can be worked and released from any story. There is also attached to it an alarm-bell, which rings when the ladder is let down, thereby arousing the inmates of the house, and forming at the same time a complete check upon burglars. The complete cost is $150 on a five or six story building. The invention can be used to great advantage on warehouses, and would save a vast amount of property and money to insurance companies. The [illegible] which runs [illegible] the ladder.

The Survey and Inspection Department already requires [illegible] as coming nearer to the requirements of the law than any other new fixture, and several of our leading insurance companies have warmly indorsed it. Mr. Skuse has certainly enlisted on his side the approving interest of a City in which there are so many vast hotels, and no less than 3,000 crowded tenement houses.

The whole frame-work is of cast iron and when put up and not in use is protected from the weather by a concave cover. All the incidents of vibration, &c., are ingeniously foreseen and guarded against, and there is every reason to believe that the problem of safety at fires has been so thoroughly solved as to make the apparatus a most welcome benefaction to civilized communities.

LAW REPORTS.

Liability of Married Women on Contracts Concerning Separate Property.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Lansing.

James H. Fonnereau vs. Mary J. Dustan.—In this action plaintiff sues the defendant for services in rendering assistance, for which, it is alleged, she agreed to pay $800 by the sale of her husband, John Dustan. This the defendant denies, and alleges that payment was to be made by the person in whose behalf the assent should be registered when the job was completed. The coverture of the defendant was not an issue in bar to the suit, but the Court held such coverture should have been pleaded, to be available, on the trial. The husband, however, was not a necessary party in the case. Judgment for $621 25, with an extra allowance.

Attorney-General for plaintiff; J. N. Whiting for defendant.

Law—Indictments for Bigamy and Statutory Exceptions.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Ingraham, Clerke and Barnard.

Charles H. Fleming, Plaintiff in Error, vs. People, Defendants in Error.—The plaintiff in error was tried in the New-York General Sessions on an indictment for bigamy. The indictment charged, that on the 11th of November, 1855, he married one Rowena Rathwin, and that on the 30th of December, 1857, he did "marry and take as his wife one Jane A. Hall, and to the said Jane was then and there married, against the form of the Statute," &c. The defence tending to prove both marriages. The testimony did not negative any of the exceptions enumerated in the statute concerning bigamy.

In the trial of the cause, counsel for prisoner requested "the Court to charge, that, in order to justify a conviction, it was necessary to prove that at the time of the alleged marriage between the defendant and Jane A. Hall, the defendant did not come within any of the exceptions mentioned in part 4, chapter 1, tit. 3, article 2, section 9 of the Revised Statutes. The Court refused so to charge, and charged that the statutory exceptions were matters of defence; to which refusal and charge, last aforesaid, counsel then and there duly excepted."

The following points were urged by counsel for the defendant:

1. The indictment, within the rules of criminal pleading, does not set forth a criminal offence, and therefore the jury should be instructed.

2. It is clearly necessary to ascertain therefrom did come within the exceptions allluded to in the 9th section above cited, and set forth in detail in the 9th section, to which the 9th section particularly refers.

In support of this point numerous authorities were cited.

3. Penal or criminal statutes must be construed strictly, and in favor of the liberty of the citizen. Nor certainly is it may be said that such laws are to be expounded strictly against an offender, and liberally in favor." * * * * "In extension of the spirit of the law, nothing may be assumed by implication; nor may the mischief intended to be prevented be increased, as against the offender, be regarded in the construction." * * * *

4. The learned Court below erred in refusing to charge the jury, that in order to justify a conviction it was necessary to prove that at the time of the alleged marriage between the defendant and Jane A. Hall, (the second wife as alleged,) the defendant did not come within any of the exceptions mentioned in the 9th section above alluded to.

5. The Court below erred in refusing to charge the jury, 1st. That in order to determine whether a valid ceremony of marriage was performed between Jane and Rowena Rathwin, it was incumbent on the people to prove what was said by the officiating clergyman, and the defendant and said Rowena Rathwin, or, if no evidence of what was said by them would enable the Court and jury to determine whether the parties to the alleged marriage agreed to take each other for husband and wife respectively; to which respective ruling prisoner's counsel duly excepted. It is submitted that the statement of the evidence that the ceremony of marriage was performed was a conclusion of law, and not a statement of fact. Had the witnesses testified to what was said by the parties and the officiating clergyman, the Court and jury could have determined whether such declarations and statements amounted in law to a contract of marriage.

The District-Attorney, in opposition, made the following points:

1. In answer at title No. 1, it was legally responsive to a very broad question put upon cross examination, and the Court was correct in refusing to strike it out.

2. The various matters of charge made by the Court were legally correct, and the refusals are to be approved of.

3. The Court correctly charged that the statutory exceptions were entirely matters of defence.

Sale of the St. Denis Hotel—Proceedings to Compute the Foreclosure of a Mortgage on the Furniture.

SUPERIOR COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Sutherland.

Jesse Mariner vs. Denis Julien, Thomas E. Davis and Walter Ker Delano.—In December, 1861, the defendant Julien forward confessed a judgment in favor, to one James M. Lounde for $6,000, and issued a supplementary proceeding duly had, the plaintiff was appointed receiver of the property of the defendant.

The receiver now applies for an order enjoining the defendants from foreclosing a certain chattel mortgage given by Stewart to Denis Julien, securing the payment of $12,000, and to set the same aside as fraudulent, in that it was in reality created for the use of the mortgagor in violation of law. It appears that one De Give purchased of Denis Julien all the furniture, wines, liquors, &c., of the St. Denis Hotel, and gave a mortgage for the purchase money for $12,000. The defendant Stewart bought out De Give, and assumed the payment of De Give's mortgage to Julien, by an agreement in which he agreed that the mortgagee should have possession of all the goods, furniture, and if any of the property, goods and chattels, furniture, substituted in its place, the same shall be considered as in lieu of, and as under this mortgage." The mortgage was to run for two years, and interest not being paid, the mortgagee commenced suit, which the plaintiff seeks to restrain him from prosecuting, relying on cases in 1 Comstock 56, and 5 Selden, 216.

The motion was argued at great length. The decision of the Judge was reserved.

R. Dyett, for plaintiff; J. B. Bullock and H. D. Sanders, for defendants.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have no intelligence from the Army of the Potomac this morning further than that a reconnoissance in force was to be made across the Potomac yesterday. It is understood that the President's Emancipation Proclamation has been well received by the soldiers, especially among the volunteers.

There was an important error in the President's emancipation proclamation, as transmitted by telegraph. It occurs in the following passage:

"The fact that any State or people therein, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States by members chosen thereto at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such State shall have participated, shall, in the absence of strong counteracting testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State and the people thereof have not been in rebellion against the United States."

In the official copy, published in the National Intelligencer, the words above italicised, "have not been," read are not then.

The second meeting of the loyal Governors was held yesterday in Washington, to which place they adjourned from Altoona, Penn. Eleven States were represented, viz. Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, New-Hampshire and Indiana. They waited upon President LINCOLN and presented an address, the points of which are given elsewhere. It pledges the most cordial support to the President in carrying out the objects of the war, and congratulates him upon his proclamation to emancipate the slaves of obdurate rebels. It appears that the reports of the proceedings at Altoona have been incorrect in various important particulars.

A railroad reconnoissance was made on Thursday from Alexandria as far as Bristow Station, on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. Much valuable property was recovered there, and brought back to Alexandria. Only eight rebel soldiers were found in the vicinity, and they were captured. It was ascertained from good authority that the rebels were running trains regularly, night and day, to Culpepper, bringing supplies for the rebel army, which were conveyed in wagons from that place by way of Sperryville and Front Royal to Winchester. The Rapidan bridge has been rebuilt, and the Rappahannock bridge is nearly finished. We think it probable that an effort will soon be made to cut this stream of rebel supplies.

The Washington Star makes some corrections regarding its statements about the amount of property which fell into the hands of the rebels at Bristow. It now states that one hundred and sixty wagon loads of ammunition, and all the sick and wounded (between five and six hundred) were removed from Bristow by Gen. BANK's command, before leaving that station. All the remaining stores and cars were destroyed by fire, except about twenty cars, which stood upon the track so near the hospital building that they could not be destroyed without endangering the lives of nearly one hundred sick and wounded Confederate soldiers who were lying in the hospital. Gen. BANKS gave peremptory orders to save these cars. After his column had passed the station the stores, as far as possible, were distributed among the troops on their march. They could not have been destroyed without endangering the lives of the sick and wounded Confederate soldiers. The engines were as completely destroyed as the time and circumstances admitted. The order for the destruction of the train was not given until the last moment, and its execution was delayed as long as possible, in expectation that the bridges over Kettle Run and Broad Run would be reconstructed. A few hours would have completed them, and the entire train would have been saved—engines, cars and stores. The rear guard of Gen. BANKS, Col. KOREPAY commanding, brought into Alexandria ninety wagons of ammunition, and about one hundred and fifty ambulances belonging to the army of Virginia and the army of the Potomac. They left nothing in the rear, the removal of which was possible.

We have advices from New-Orleans to the 15th inst., by the arrival at this port of the steamship Philadelphia. Gen. BURSIDE has issued an order, dated the 14th, requiring each neutral foreign resident in the department to present himself, with evidence of his nationality, to the nearest Provost-marshal for the registration of himself and family. Gen. BUTLER precedes this order by the declaration that in the course of ten days it might become necessary to distinguish the disloyal from the loyal citizens and honest neutral foreigners. All false or simulated claims of foreign alliance Gen. BUTLER threatens to punish severely.

The United States gunboat Connecticut, which arrived at this port yesterday, from the Gulf ports and Port Royal, brings intelligence that naval expeditions were being fitted out both at Pensacola and Port Royal, and that the public will probably hear of important achievements by the former in a week or two. This means, without doubt, that Mobile is to be attacked at once, as asserted by our correspondence from the Gulf a short time ago. The Connecticut reports that the health of all our forces, land and sea, in the Gulf is remarkably good.

Gen. PENNIMAN, of the Twenty-seventh Illinois, has arrived in Louisville, and brings details of the skirmish with Morgan, who have not reached us. Morgan's force, which we have not estimated by telegraph. He says Gen. Prince's command numbered twenty thousand men, in good condition for fighting. Gen. BURBRIDGE made the attack. The rebels, cutting their way through our lines, commenced a precipitate retreat in the direction of the Muscle Shoals, in the Tennessee River. At last accounts, GRANT and BURBRIDGE were in pursuit of PRICE's flying forces. The rebels left seven hundred dead on the battle-field, and all their wounded fell into our hands and were sent to Corinth. The National loss in killed and wounded was three or four hundred. The victory was complete. Five hundred additional prisoners were taken during the retreat, making 850 in all up to the time Capt. PENNIMAN left. We have also taken 36 pieces of artillery, and nearly the whole of PRICE's wagon, supply and ammunition trains.

A few items of news from Helena, Ark., are communicated to the St. Louis Republican, by an occasional correspondent, writing under date of Sept. 18: Col. B. S. COMPTON, of St. Louis, who had been hunting up cotton back of Helena, and beyond the National lines, had been "gobbled up" by the rebels, who still had him. Col. COMPTON was Lieutenant-Colonel of Burge's Sharpshooters. The invasion of Missouri from Arkansas is believed at Helena, and our military commanders are notified to be wide awake. HINDMAN, PARSONS and McBRIDE are all known to be moving North to unite with HOLMES, who is now at Camden, with 20,000 or 15,000 men. Gen. PRICE was sick, though was expected on Col. GOVEREUR, Secretary of State, arrived at Helena on the 15th, on his return from Missouri.

The Louisville Journal of Tuesday states that Gen. G. W. MORGAN, commander of the National forces of the Cumberland Gap Expedition, has reached Richmond, Ky., with 12,000 men, and made prisoners 600 rebels left there as a garrison. The sudden appearance of Gen. MORGAN in the rear of the rebels in Kentucky, may greatly disconcert their plans. There is no telling what amount of damage he may do them.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Philadelphia, which touched at Havana on the way from New-Orleans, brings advices from Vera Cruz to the 11th inst. The vomito was making dreadful havoc among the French shipping. Many of the physicians had died, and only two were left in the whole fleet. It was believed that a conducta with a million of dollars, destined for the payment of the French troops at Orizaba, had been captured by the guerrillas. A report was current that the French were about to attack Jalapa.

The steamship Ariel arrived at this port yesterday morning, from Aspinwall on the 17th inst. She brought mails, passengers and treasure—nearly a million—from California. The news from the Isthmus by this arrival is not of much importance, and appears to be rather unfavorable to the cause of MOSQUERA in the United States of Colombia. He had closed all the cathedrals, banished all the priests, and seized all the Church property, including the nunneries, obliging the nuns to take refuge somewhere else. On the 9th inst., they started for Lima, in Peru. It was the belief that MOSQUERA had not strengthened his cause by these arbitrary acts. It was believed that CALVO and OSPINA, reactionary chiefs, had escaped from the country on board a British steamer, and that this escape would tend to prolong the war, as would also the recent treaty negotiated with Ecuador by ARBOLEDA. The Ariel brings no later news from South America.

At the meeting of the Episcopal Convention yesterday, after a long discussion, in which the most eminent clergymen of the diocese participated, the Convention decided that it is inexpedient at the present time to divide the diocese, and appointed a committee to which the whole subject was referred, with instructions to report at the next Convention. The very able minority report of Rev. THOMAS M. PEYTRE was ordered printed in the journal. The Convention devoted the greater portion of the evening to a discussion of the report of the Select Committee on the Ascertainment and Defining of Boundaries.

A collision, which appears to have been the result of gross carelessness, occurred on the Cumberland Valley Railroad, on Wednesday morning, a few miles beyond Harrisburgh. A train, with a large number of the Pennsylvania Militia on board, on their way hence from the Maryland border, was almost completely wrecked, and a large number of the soldiers were killed and wounded.

The Philadelphia North American gives currency to mysterious rumors to the effect that some of the new Union troops in Missouri have joined the ranks of the rebels. One of these rumors places the number at 3,000, but there is nothing authentic to confirm any of them, and, at best, they must be considered doubtful.

The Philadelphia Presbyterian states that Rev. Dr. R. J. BRECKINRIDGE has fallen into the hands of the rebels. It has the information from what it considers an authentic source, but, if it is true, it is singular that we should not have heard of it from some other quarter.

The Alta California, of Aug. 24, has this paragraph, which demonstrates conclusively that the world moves: "The telegraph worked bravely last night. Our latest dispatches are dated Washington and New-York, 12 o'clock, midnight. They reached us at 10 P. M., two hours in fact before they were transmitted."

The Acting Quartermaster at Alexandria has within the past week discharged over two hundred vessels, the greater portion of which have been in the employ of the Government since the army of the Potomac took the water route to Richmond.

The agents in this City of SUIT's distillery, on Salt River, Kentucky, has received a telegram, stating that the works are in the hands of the rebels. Most of the stock has been moved to Louisville.

The business at the Stock Exchange was again very large yesterday, but with less excitement than on Thursday. There was a decided reaction in prices, nearly all which closed lower. Gold, 120¼; Exchange, 132 ⅌ cent.

Breadstuffs, Sugars, Raisins, Lard, Tallow, Ingot Copper and Kentucky Tobacco were active and buoyant yesterday. Cotton was quiet and depressed, as were also Hides, Seeds, Skins, Teas and Naval Stores. A fair inquiry prevailed for Fish, Fruit, Hay, Hemp, Tin, Pig Lead, Candles and Whisky. The Freight market was moderately active, but rates were lower.

GARIBALDI'S PERSONAL EXPLANATION.—The interesting personal statement of GARIBALDI, touching the affair of Aspromonte, furnishes a curious revelation of the aims and hopes with which he began his enterprise. Nothing could more strikingly prove how firmly he believed himself to be engaged in a justifiable mission, and not in a civil war. He had, it seems, strictly enjoined on his followers not to fire on the royal troops, and even after he was wounded he repeated the order. GARIBALDI does not explain how he expected to proceed after this peaceable, unresisting fashion, beyond saying that he "entertained the hope that the regular troops had received orders less sanguinary." The probability is, however, that he expected, when he refused to fire on the royal troops, they would join him with or without the consent of their commander. In this expectation he was sadly deceived, and it was perhaps not until he found himself a prisoner that he fully understood either his real position toward the Government or the real sentiment of the people. The letter of GARIBALDI, if it does not justify his enterprise, challenges a new and tender interest in that pure-souled and chivalrous character.

Sentiment in a Party Whence.

The particular part assigned to the Northern Democracy in the tragedy of rebellion was to distract the counsels of the North, and, by dividing the loyalists of the country, insure the predominance of treason. Up to the moment when the patience of the people, tried beyond endurance by the outrage in Charleston harbor, gave impulse to the great political upheaval of April, 1861, the part was played with much courage and consistency, and not without promise of success. It was only when the acting became physically dangerous that the play was abandoned, to be resumed, however, when the tempest of popular passion should subside. It is now resumed. A great party has framed its platform for the sole purpose of weakening the Government by dividing the loyal sentiment of the North; and no device is too daring or revolutionary, and no trick or falsehood too vile, to be omitted from the task of promoting agitation and provoking insurrection.

The business, by a convenient arrangement, resolves itself into two methods. The first proposes by the most inflammatory appeals, directed at the extraordinary police precautions which the Government is obliged to enforce for the preservation of public order, to incite a public insurrection. The World, which is understood to have become the property of Mr. BENJAMIN WOOD, and which is simply the Satanic Day Book under another name, challenges the people to rise and make a revolution in the Government. The Express, always predisposed to extremes of mischief, improves upon the World as follows:

"The World reasons, that the People will not submit to all this! Vain Logic, so far,—we have seen! There are no 'People.' The People are all dead! They had, when living, a great deal more of Liberty than they deserved,—and the Washington Powers that be, judge rightly of their cringing, craven spirit, in decoming them to the slavery they do. A 'People,' that will permit an American citizen, right or wrong, in what he has said or done, to be kidnapped in Buffalo,—from the jurisdiction of such a United States Court as that of Justice Hall there presides over, and to be abducted all the way from Buffalo to New-York,—thence to Washington,—on the Railroad, in the thickest settled parts of the country, are fit for any yoke, any Tyrant will impose upon them."

And, referring to the language of the Administration Press regarding the Democratic nominee for Governor, it says in the same vein:

"This sort of political controversy will soon bring Republicans and Democrats to blows in the streets. Men giving their money for the war, or their sons or brothers, will not long stand this sort of talk."

Every phrase is certainly well calculated, and no doubt intended, to provoke public disorder and revolution, whereby the rebel cause would be most effectually served; and if we could conceive of the Express exerting any sort of influence in any quarter, its appeals would presently plunge the North into civil dissensions, and submerge the country in hopeless ruin. And yet such is the language adopted by journals of which the Express is a fair exponent, and while the Government raises no hand to punish or restrain such incendiarism, it is no less vigorously denounced for tyranny and outrage upon the rights of free speech.

A second plan of these daring partisans, to whom the appellation of conspirators is more appropriate, is to stir up the army to mutiny, and bring the military power to displace the Constitutional Government. For this object the most reckless falsifications are resorted to. The party which elected Mr. LINCOLN to the Presidency, is boldly charged with a determination to remove from the head of our main army, a General idolized by the soldiers, and put in his place an avowed Abolitionist, proved to be incompetent for military command. It is represented that the President is every day besieged by his political friends to make this change; and to excite still more dangerously the resentment of the army, it is given out that the Governors of the loyal States, one only excepted, assembled in a remote town of Pennsylvania, to frame a joint demand upon the President for the disgrace of the General, whose name and fame are so dear to the army and the country. What are said to be reports of the debates in this Gubernatorial conclave, are printed and circulated among the soldiers; debates in which the most frantic propositions are discussed, and the most extravagant pretensions are arrogated. From a correct summary of the proceedings, in another column, it will be learned how slanderously false were these so-called reports. The subject of displacing and appointing Generals was never broached in the meeting. No opposition or dictation to the Government was even hinted at. The heads of the several loyal States represented, merely gathered to give the Administration, which can alone save the country, assurance of unfaltering support, and the sanction of their approval to its recent measures.

The truth is, the game the organs of this revolutionary party have attempted is a hazardous one, but to none so dangerous as to themselves. It is not merely that the exposure of their wicked falsehoods, and motives and arts must destroy whatever may be left to them of popular confidence, and expose them to the fate of false prophets and detected cheats; they involve, legally, the penalty of sedition—a penalty local and municipal authority may enforce, without awaiting National interposition. To invite a riot or a greater or less important breach of public peace, is an offence for which the State has penalties, and its prisons has cells. To these penalties the Press fairly exposes itself when, not content with urging the people to action at the ballot-box, it stirs them to revolt and bloodshed. Such appeals are beyond the bounds of safe political discussion.

THE PRICE OF ARMS.—A note from Hon. ROBERT DALE OWEN, inserted elsewhere, corrects a statement for which the TIMES on Thursday was indebted to the Indianapolis State Journal, touching a purchase of arms for Indiana. Mr. OWEN informs us that no Enfield rifles are bought by Government for so high a price as twenty-four dollars; the price for the ordinary weapon varying only fractionally from sixteen dollars. In the instance of Mr. OWEN's sale, the price was nearly two dollars beyond this standard, for the sufficient reason that the lot of weapons was of highly superior make and finish.

It is satisfactory to know that no such extravagant rate is paid for an arm the essential recommendations of which are still in doubt. In both the Enfield and rifled musket complaint is loud in condemnation of the Enfield rifle. It is urged that it fails with dangerous and vexatious frequency; that its peculiar sight and long range are useful only to marksmen; whereas in firing by platoons attention is seldom given to accuracy of aim; and in the temptation to fire while still distant from the enemy, the troops are apt to exhaust their ammunition before they come to those closer quarters, where volleys are effectual and deadly. Foreign officers universally criticise this fault in the fighting of the Union soldiers. In the West, the troops openly denounce the rifled guns. The old Harper's Ferry or Springfield smooth bores, of which endless thousands may be found in the several State arsenals, are preferred for the reason that they do not constantly become dirty; and because they admit the use of buckshot with ball, a charge which is fourfold more destructive than the single slug. These considerations should, we think, have weight in checking the purchase of foreign arms of unproved value but formidable price.

Gen. Phelps, the Curtius of Emancipation.

Brig.-Gen. PHELPS has just published in the New-York Tribune a full statement of the difficulties which he experienced in executing the President's policy of emancipation before it was adopted. This is the substance of the case set forth by the General—and so far as he is personally concerned in the matter, it is too plain to need discussion, that he sacrificed his peace of mind, his permanent use, fulness in Louisiana, and his commission, to a thoroughly and curiously mistaken theory of his duty and his responsibilities. He went to Louisiana as a military agent of the Government at Washington, under the orders of a Major-General, regularly appointed and charged with the supreme direction of affairs in the Department to which Brig.-Gen. PHELPS had been assigned. Much meditating the grave issues of Slavery and emancipation, as it is creditable to him that he should have done, Gen. PHELPS became convinced that the continued existence of Slavery is incompatible, in the first instance, with the progress of civilization at the South, and, in the second instance, with the maintenance of the National authority over the seceded States. Thus convinced, he forthwith proceeded to act upon his convictions, and to establish at "Camp Parapet, near Carrollton, La.," a nucleus of free institutions for the South, reporting at the same time to his commanding officer that the Government at Washington really must come to some conclusion upon the question of emancipation, if it expected either to retain the services of Gen. PHELPS, or to put a satisfactory end to the rebellion. We mean no disrespect to Gen. PHELPS in this statement of his singular appeal—for we are disposed to believe him as sincere and singleminded, as we cannot but think him mistaken in his estimate of his official obligations. Maj.-Gen. BUTLER evidently balancing for some time between the proprieties of his position, and his respect for Gen. PHELPS, was finally compelled to interpose his superior authority in execution of certain orders, which the apostolic Brigadier had hesitated to obey, and an unpleasant collision, which could have had but one result, and that not an agreeable one for Gen. PHELPS, was avoided only by the acceptance at Washington of that officer's resignation.

No longer an officer of the National army, Gen. PHELPS has now risen to that post of honor "a private station," from which he may with greater fitness, and therefore with greater force, emit his views of Slavery in its relations with the present War, and with future Peace. These views deserve attention, for they have been formed in the course of a practical acquaintance with the perils and opportunities of armed emancipation. Gen. PHELPS proposes a military organization of the negroes by way of reclaiming them "from despotic government" and "subordinating them to democratic institutions." This is vague, and as a matter of phraseology it must be admitted rather unpromising. But phraseology is not the General's forte. His instincts are sounder than his style; and in appreciating the absolute impossibility of reconciling the protection of Slavery with the permanence of Freedom, he has shown himself equal to these vital issues of the great conflict we are waging, which politicians have striven and will strive in vain to evade. Whether he has hit upon the most practicable means of solving the problem which he sees so clearly, may, perhaps, be doubted. But we heartily commend to every thoughtful citizen the substance of the General's creed, that "to ignore Slavery in the present crisis is but little less disastrous than Slavery itself." This truth has been acquired by Gen. PHELPS at no small cost to himself. We can only hope that the country may not have to pay a proportional price before learning it as thoroughly as he has done.

The Sanitary Commission.

The recent magnificent donation of one hundred thousand dollars, made by San Francisco to the Sanitary Commission, ought to and we hope will serve to fix the public attention more closely and profitably than ever upon this great practical agency of Christian civilization in the camp. With judgment and energy in the administration of its affairs, no easily assignable limit can be set to the good which this Commission may do, as no easily assignable limit can be set to the evils which its labors are designed to mitigate and to arrest. Could the citizens of the North, to whom the war is a rumor and a history; the dancers at Newport and Saratoga; the promenaders in Broadway and the Park; the busy and glittering throngs whose skimmes through our City streets makes the observer sometimes doubt whether all he sees about him is not a vast delusion and a dream, so little does it speak or show of the tremendous strife the nation is waging for existence; could these myriads for whom and for whose future the brave are dying by scores and hundreds every week, look in, for but one hour, upon the hospitals of the army—pass but one night upon a moonlit field of battle fresh from the wrathful passage of the war-angels, it would need no voice of ours to rouse them to the joy which goes up unceasingly to these ministrations of mercy.

Not the red battle-field only, remember, claims these steady, these perpetual ministrations. Every month, every encampment has its victims. Disease and death, imprudence, ignorance, incapacity, are enemies more incessant in their attacks, more unrelenting in their wolf-like pursuit, than LEE or JACKSON. Half a million of men snatched from their homes, their habits, from the customs and the comforts of their daily life, must fight their way day and night through armies of invisible foes, before they can so much as get within range of the hostile cannon and the bayonets of brothers turned to foes. And then? What a sudden contribution every engagement, however slight, must make to the ranks of the suffering and the sick. The excitement, the exposure, strike down their twenties, where the bullet and the sabre prostrate their tens. That the Medical Staff improvised for this improvised army should be adequate to the duties imposed upon it, is manifestly impossible. If we could strip the community of all its skilled physicians, and send them into the field, we should scarcely meet the sudden demand in full. But this we cannot do and we must therefore wait for the action of time to make our actual medical corps what it ought to be. But, meanwhile, our men are suffering and dying. Here, then, is the peremptory reason for the existence of such an organization as the Sanitary Commission. It comes to the aid of the Medical Department, and, standing between that Department and the public, strives to concentrate and direct aright the impulses of private humanity and affection which are welling forth from all parts of our country to the armies which represent them all. To accomplish this work demands of those who are engaged in it a constant, untiring devotion of their time and their resources. Surely they, in their turn, do not ask too much when they beg that their labors may be watched with scrupulous fidelity, and aided by the practical and intelligent sympathies of the community.

THE LOYAL GOVERNORS.

Their Second Meeting Held in Washington Yesterday.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PRESIDENT

A Pledge of Aid to Bring the War to a Speedy Termination.

THE EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION INDORSED

What was Done at the Meeting at Altoona.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 26.

The Governors of the following-named loyal States arrived here this morning from Altoona, Penn., namely:

Massachusetts,	Rhode Island,
Pennsylvania,	Virginia,
Ohio,	Illinois,
Wisconsin,	Iowa,
Michigan,	New-Hampshire,

and Indiana.

The last-named (Indiana) was represented by Col. ROSS.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock, the Governors of the States above-named had an interview of an official character with President LINCOLN, and presented an address expressing:

First—A cordial, personal, and official respect for the President.

Second.—A determination under all circumstances to support and maintain the President's constitutional authority, the Governors therein speaking for themselves and the people of their respective States.

Third.—Pledging to the President their aid in all measures calculated to bring the war to an early termination, which should be prosecuted to ultimate victory, unless all the rebels should return to their constitutional duty and obedience.

Fourth.—Congratulating the President upon his proclamation to emancipate the slaves, believing it will be productive of good as a measure of justice, humanity, and sound policy.

Fifth.—Referring to the merits of the soldiers who have fought our battles.

The Governors were courteously and kindly received, and their suggestions listened to with close attention by the President.

It is ascertained from those who had best opportunities for knowing that there was no proposition made at the recent Conference at Altoona, nor even a suggestion ventured, touching the removal of Gen. McCLELLAN, nor was any proposition or suggestion made as to the promotion of Gen. FARRAGUT to the head of the army, or to the future disposal of that gentleman.

The address to the President, as agreed to, was written by Gov. ANDREWS, at the suggestion of the other Governors present. No counter propositions or amended address was submitted.

Gov. BRADFORD, of Maryland, alone did not sign the Address, expressing a fear that the President's proclamation to emancipate the slaves might not prove as advantageous in the Conference hoped, and regarding the matter as too doubtful to justify him in taking sides in its support.

There was no dispute nor improper warmth of debate whatever. The conversation was of the most polite kind and conciliatory character, and all present were animated by a cordial spirit of unity in support of the Government, the President, and the prosecution of the war, the principal aim of the Conference being to express to the President their sentiments, and to proffer their support to him in the future as in the past, and to make the relations of all loyal men and States more close, intimate and firm.

All excepting Gov. BRADFORD, of Maryland, were heartily convinced of the wisdom of the proclamation to emancipate the slaves, and were desirous of expressing this conviction to the President.

In the Conference, various details relating to the recruiting, organization, equipment and transportation of troops were discussed. The Governors freely compared notes, and agreed upon various points in this connection, which they agreed to submit to the President and Secretary of War. They did not, however, as to these matters, put anything in writing, because they did not wish to appear dictatorial, and believing that friendly verbal communications, in a polite and respectful interview, would give them effect, so far as they might be regarded correct or beneficial.

The care and removal of the sick and wounded and the subject of furloughs to the soldiery, etc., attracted a great deal of attention, the subject being in such shape, that, if the suggestions made shall be adopted by the authorities, the condition of the soldiery will be greatly improved. Copies of the resolutions, and the true substance of the conference, will be given to the public, in due time, as soon as they can be properly prepared for the press. It was unanimously agreed that furloughs should be so regulated as to prevent future abuses.

It was also agreed to suggest an army of reserve, after the quota already called for shall be filled, not less than 100,000 men, to be detailed and disciplined at home, and to be called out, in cases of sudden emergency, at such points where there may be need of their services, and to be mustered into service for twelve months, unless sooner discharged.

A LATER REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 26.

The interview between the President and the Governors this afternoon continued three hours. They all represent it to have been of a pleasant and gratifying character. While plainly indicating their confidence in the President's integrity and ability, and assuring him of their determination to support him in the discharge of his duties, their communication was partook of the nature of friendly suggestions. Some of the suggestions, he said, indicatively resembled executive communications; but, as others had now for the first time been presented, he requested that they be reduced to writing, in order that they might receive with the attention which their importance demanded.

The Governors having transacted their business with the President, some of them left the City this afternoon for their respective homes.

GENERAL NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 26.

THE MEETING OF THE GOVERNORS.

Great indignation is felt by the Governors who met at Altoona, at the mendacious statements purporting to be an account of their proceedings. There were no discussions at the meeting of the relative military qualities of either Gen. McCLELLAN or Gen. FARRAGUT. Indeed, the name of Gen. FARRAGUT was not mentioned in connection with any command. There was no proposition made to displace McCLELLAN, and no difference of opinion on military matters. The meeting of the Governors was unaware of any of the subversive designs which have been attributed to it. It was proposed by Gov. CURTIN to Gov. PRENTICE at the time when the invasion of the North seemed almost inevitable. The letter connected Gov. TOD, and both agreed upon the time and place. Other Governors were then notified, and invited to attend. A great share of the time of the meeting was occupied in discussing matters pertaining to recruiting the army, and the better treatment of the sick and wounded, based on the personal experience of the Governors. Several important conclusions were reached, deemed not proper to be embodied in the address to the President.

THE CABINET AND THE PROCLAMATION.

As there is much inquiry in regard to the position of the different members of the Cabinet on the emancipation proclamation, it is proper to state that, at a cabinet meeting on Tuesday the question of its approval was not submitted by the President, he having made up his mind to the act, and being desirous only of consultation on two or three of its clauses; but it is known that Secretary CHASE has from the first been a most decided advocate of the measure, in which he has been moderately sustained by Secretaries WELLES and BATES. Secretary STANTON has long favored any measure that will strike Slavery, though not specially advocating this proclamation. Secretary BLAIR continued bitter in his opposition, to the last, as of late was Secretary SEWARD. Secretary SEWARD has all along been known to be unfavorable to the act, though not as outspoken in his opposition as Secretary BLAIR.

GEN. M'CLERNAND AND THE PROCLAMATION.

Gen. JOHN A. McCLERNAND is in the city with Gov. YATES, of Illinois. He is very outspoken in his approbation of the President's proclamation against Slavery, believing it to be a good thing, and calculated to quiet public sentiment, as a large portion of the loyal people of the North desired some such declaration as a matter of principle, while the portion less loyal were constantly clamoring in anticipation of some such act, and picturing all sorts of horrors as inevitably to result. All know, he says, that the position must be taken sooner or later, and the sooner the better for the country. It cannot do harm at the South, as the people there always believed it would come at some time, and acted on that belief. It will greatly help us in England, by gratifying the Anti-Slavery sentiment of the English people, as distinguished from the English aristocracy. In his judgment, it is an eminently wise measure. These views are believed to be those of the Douglas Party in the North.

GOV. STANLY.

Some comment has resulted from the fact that Gov. STANLY registered his name at the hotel here as a citizen of California, from which it was inferred that he had resigned his Governorship. He says that it was done by mistake, and is annoyed that it should have occurred. He returns immediately to North Carolina.

FRESH CHARGES AGAINST FITZ-JOHN PORTER.

It is reported that fresh charges are preferred against FITZ-JOHN PORTER. We learn that Gens. BURNSIDE and PLEASANTON have accused him of refusing or neglecting to send reinforcements when they were needed. These, with charges preferred by Gen. POPE, it is said, will be investigated on early occasion.

THE INDIANS.

A letter from Indian Commissioner DOLE, received to-day, says that the war with the Sioux has only commenced, and will not be ended within a year. The tribes in insurrection number about ten thousand persons, of whom two thousand three hundred are warriors.

EXCHANGED PRISONERS.

Nineteen hundred exchanged prisoners from Richmond are here to-day.

LETTERS FOR THE NAVY.

The Navy Department does not desire that letters addressed to persons on board any vessel in the Navy should be directed to the care of the Navy Department, as stated in yesterday's dispatches. The larger portion of its own letters are sent through the regular channels, and to forward private letters to the Department would only occasion delay and trouble.

REVENUE STAMPS.

Orders for revenue stamps must cover remittances for Treasury Notes, or an original certificate of a United States Treasurer, or designated depositary of a deposit made for the purchase of stamps. Orders will not be transmitted upon receipt of checks on distant state banks.

The Mapson Gold Pen.

The days of quill and steel are passed away, and the era of gold pens is upon us. Mr. MAPSON, who for years has been a successful manufacturer of this article, has at length brought the requisite machinery to such perfection that its work leaves nothing to be desired.

From those who have been in the habit of using the Mapson pen, even subjecting it to the severest test of editorial labor, we learn that in all essential points of excellence, such as temper, flexibility, durability and permanence of point, these pens are unsurpassed. In the mercantile and professional world their rank is deservedly high, and upon Mr. MAPSON's files are hundreds of recommendations from scholars, lawyers, priests and kings, all of whom testify with alacrity and cordiality to the merits of the article. To clergymen, book-keepers, copyists and others who write much, we would heartily recommend the Mapson pen as the very best substitute yet offered in the place of the gray goose quill.

Cumberland Valley Railroad.

A Number of the Pennsylvania Militia Killed and Wounded.

Harrisburg, Cumberland Valley, Sept. 26.

A terrible collision took place on the Cumberland Valley Railroad this morning, one mile above Newville.

A train of cattle, and a number of Pennsylvania militia on board, returning home from the Maryland campaign, were thrown down an embankment.

Lieut. Colonel Jack was in Company I, of the 26th Pennsylvania Militia, belonging to Reading.

Among the killed is a son of Hunter Hoover, of this city.

Many of the Cove-Earnings Guards were killed or wounded.

Capt. Hammond's leg was broken.

Major Lond, A. W. Thompson's leg was also broken.

Harrisburg, Penn., Friday, Sept. 26.

A freight train, consisting of twenty freight cars, containing the Twentieth Regiment of Pennsylvania Militia, which on its way from Newcastle this morning, met with a terrible disaster.

The train was heated twice, and waited at Carlisle for other trains to pass, but none coming, she commenced, the three trains proceeded on its way.

The weather was quite foggy, and when within a mile of the bridge, a short distance from this city, the train suddenly came upon an engine standing on the track.

The engine attached to the freight train was immediately reversed, but too late to prevent a collision, and the two engines came together with terrible force.

The cattle car was literally ground to pieces, and nearly all of its occupants either killed or wounded.

The second car was driven into the first and completely destroyed.

The third car was thrown on the top of the second, crushing through the roof of it.

Both engines are a complete wreck. The cause of the accident was gross carelessness.

Thirty soldiers were seriously wounded. The following is the names of some of the killed:

Corporal Hessom, of Philadelphia, crushed to death.

John Robinson, Company F, Corn Exchange Reg.

H. McFreesen, Company F, Corn Exchange Reg.

John McKay, Company F, Corn Exchange Reg.

James Wesson, of Reading.

Amos Rudolph, of Reading.

Lieut. Colonel Jack's leg was broken.

Major Lond's leg was broken.

HEADQUARTERS SUPERINTENDENT General Recruiting Service New-York State Volunteers, Mustering and Disbursing Officer, No. 408 Broadway, Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1862. PROPOSALS GOVERNING SUBSISTENCE FOR DRAFTED MILITIA.

The following places are hereby designated as rendezvous for the drafted militia of the State of New-York, viz.:

ALBANY.—For the Counties of Clinton, St. Lawrence, Warren, Essex, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lewis and Herkimer.

ALBANY.—For the Counties of Albany, Delaware, Otsego, Schoharie, Green, Schenectady, Montgomery, Columbia, Rensselaer, Washington, Fulton, Saratoga, Greene and Schoharie.

ELMIRA.—For the Counties of Broome, Tioga, Oswego, Chemung, Cortland, Tompkins, Chemung, Wayne, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca, Ontario, Steuben, Schuyler, Madison and Yates.

EAST NEW-YORK, or LONG ISLAND.—For New-York City and County, corner of Bowery and Canal-st. Open every day from 9 to 5 o'clock, and on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 5 to 7.

BUFFALO.—For the Counties of Allegheny, Wyoming, Livingston, Monroe, Orleans, Genesee, Niagara, Erie, Chautauqua and Chatauqua.

Proposals will be received at this office, until Friday, 12 o'clock, M., 24 day of October, 1862, for supplying the Drafted Militia of the State of New-York, with subsistence at the Camps or Stations before enumerated.

The subsistence is to consist of uncooked rations—the per rations—which consists of the following, to wit:

Three-fourths of a pound of pork or bacon, or, one and one-fourth pounds of fresh or salt beef; twenty-two ounces of bread or flour, or, one pound of hard bread, or, one and one-fourth pounds of corn-meal; and at the rate of every one hundred rations, of eight quarts of beans or peas, or twelve pounds of rice or hominy; ten pounds of green coffee, or, eight pounds of roasted or ground coffee, or, one and one-half pounds of tea; fifteen pounds of sugar; four quarts of vinegar; one pound of sperm candles, or, one and one-fourth pounds of adamantine candles, or one and one-half pounds of tallow candles; four pounds of soap and two quarts of salt.

In addition to the ration, twice per week, one gallon of molasses per one hundred rations and thrice per week an issue of potatoes, at the rate of one pound per man.

When beans, peas, rice, hominy, or potatoes cannot be issued in the proportion given above, an equivalent in value will be issued in the proper food.

Desiccated potatoes or desiccated mixed vegetables, at the rate per one hundred rations of one hundred and fifty ounces of the former, or one-hundred ounces of the latter, may be substituted for beans, peas, rice, hominy, or fresh potatoes, when these articles cannot be issued; or they may be issued at the foregoing rate twice per week, in lieu of beans or peas, or in lieu of rice or hominy, upon the requisition of the officer commanding the depot; fresh beef may be issued as often as the commanding officer may require it, when practicable, in place of salt meat.

Each bid will be indorsed, "Subsistence for Drafted Militia."

Good and ample security will be required. It will not be obligatory to receive the lowest bid.

POETRY.

From the New-York Daily Times, Saturday, September 27, 1862.

A Pen's Pen.

One of our country's most valuable and venerated poets, having been interested by this, Morton's gold pen, in the following lines addressed to the inventor:

Morton, I am
Not a poet, but a man
Who, when he sees a thing of beauty,
Feels the fact of duty
Pressing on him to express
The thought that fills him, lest
Some other, less or more
Than he, may pen it o'er
Pen, then, from a poet's eyes as
Pure, fine, fine as the skies
Pure, fine, fine as it, then as
Pure, fine, fine as, in blue and
Yonder, pure, fine, fine as
Pure, fine, fine as, in pure
Pure, fine, fine as, in pure
Pure, fine, fine as, in pure
